

Phillip Zada

for National Conference

I joined Labor because it was a party grounded in everyday people, workers, families and small business owners who believed in fairness, opportunity and contributing to their community. Labor backed aspiration as much as equity and it understood that strong communities are built when people feel respected, listened to and included.

I'm running because I believe Labor must work harder to listen to its members and stay connected to the people who made our movement great. If we lose touch with that foundation, we risk losing trust, not just at elections, but within our own party.

As Deputy Mayor of Melton, I've focused on stability, listening and delivery. As Chair of LeadWest, I worked with councils and communities across Western Melbourne and during the last federal election, 7 of 9 priority advocacy asks were successfully funded including major investments in the Sunshine Precinct and Airport Rail, the Calder Freeway, and other region-shaping transport and community infrastructure projects. Locally, as a long-running Kororoit branch executive, I've also focused on strengthening respectful engagement so members feel welcome, valued, and heard.

Labor must listen to its members and genuinely engage with them.

Our diversity is our strength, the party must reflect and support all working people.

Workers, families and small business must remain central to Labor's mission.
